

The Lord shall arise and break the bow above and below you. Your plight is not small in His eyes as he gives attendance to your prayers and supplications before Him. The Lord mighty in strength stands over you, sword drawn to cut asunder the enemy which desires to destroy you.

Your light has risen out of obscurity and is readily seen by all as seeing with the eyes of their understanding. The powerful Lord has smitten your enemy and will not suffer you to fall and become downtrodden.

The cries of your heart have risen to the throne room of God and is a savor to His nose. He has moved swiftly from His place and called, amassed, an army to battle for your cause; they will not fail; they shall prevail against the dragon for my Name's sake.

I shall dash arrogance and show myself strong to all who mock me with their mouth and heart. Their very words shall be snatched from them and used to declare myself.