

Christianity On the Job

By

David J Roll

September 1, 2014

There was once a state congressman who stated he did not take Christianity with him to his job. Too bad for that man. My wife and I talked at length about the man's statement. If a person is truly a Christian, there is no separation between the walk of Christianity and work they do. As the scripture says in James, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven. In another place, "Study to show yourself approved to God, a workman that need not be ashamed rightly dividing the word of truth.' Again, he that is of the light comes to the light to show his deeds are wrought in God.